

Barrybill Patient Advocate

Topic: Sepsis and Sepsis Shock

TERM	DEFINITION
disseminated intravascular coagulation	is a rare blood clotting disorder that can cause organ damage and uncontrollable bleeding. DIC is a complication of different serious medical conditions that can be life-threatening if you don't receive treatment. Risk factors include having serious infections or injuries, certain medical conditions or complications of some medical treatments.
https://my.clevelandclinic.org/health/diseases/21836-disseminated-intravascular-coagulation-dic	